What Is Broken Rice Porridge?

Broken rice porridge is made from partially milled or cracked rice grains cooked in water to a soft, soupy consistency. It's light on the stomach, rich in hydration, and often enhanced with just a dash of salt or a spoon of ghee. In Ayurveda, it's seen as a sattvic, grounding, and tridoshic meal — especially healing for vata and pitta conditions.

How to Make Broken Rice Porridge: The Traditional Way

□ Ingredients:

- ½ cup broken raw rice (or partially broken rice grains)
- 3–3.5 cups water (adjust for desired thickness)
- Salt to taste (optional)
- 1 tsp ghee (optional)

□ Method:

1. Rinse the Rice:

Wash the broken rice thoroughly in water 2–3 times.

2. Cook:

In a thick-bottomed pan or pressure cooker, combine rice with water and cook until the grains are completely soft and broken down. This usually takes:

- 3 whistles in a pressure cooker on medium flame
- 30–35 minutes simmering in a pot, stirring occasionally.

3. Mash and Adjust:

Once cooked, mash gently using the back of a ladle. Add more hot water if you prefer a thinner consistency.

4. Season and Serve:

Add salt if needed, and top with ghee or serve plain. You may also mix with warm milk or buttermilk based on digestion and body condition.
